Nova Scotia is the first province in Canada to regulate Medical Laboratory Assistants

Effective May 3, 2025, the Nova Scotia College of Medical Laboratory Technology (NSCMLT) is the first province in Canada to regulate medical laboratory assistants under the Nova Scotia Medical Laboratory Technology Act. This initiative is an important step in enhancing public safety, improving healthcare standards, and ensuring that these essential professionals can work within their full scope of practice.

We acknowledge that the land on which the CMLTA office is located is Treaty 6 territory and a traditional meeting ground for many Indigenous people. This is home to the Cree, Blackfoot, and Metis, as it is for the Nakoda, Tsuu T'ina, Chipewyan, and other Indigenous people. Their spiritual and practical relationships to the land create a rich heritage for our life as a community.
